

Customer Sign Up Code of Practice

Electric Ireland Customer Sign Up Code of Practice

Electric Ireland aims to adopt practices which allow our customers to have confidence in the supply of energy and associated services.

We are committed to working to best practice with respect to the sign up of our products and services.

We aim to make sure that our promotional material is accurate, transparent and specifies the product being marketed; specifically, that:

- All information on our products and services, regardless of the sales channels, is accurate and easily understood.
- All relevant content will be communicated in plain accessible language, format and presentation.
- Where price comparisons are used, all relevant charges are included. The basis of any claimed savings is clearly stated. All our tariffs and charges are easily identifiable. Our residential tariffs are accessible on www.electricireland.ie, and our non-household tariffs and price plans are available by contacting our Business Service Centre on 1800 372 787.
- Our material provides information on time limits applying to any promotion, or any changes in conditions which may occur once the period of the promotion expires, and/or any additional terms, conditions or charges which may be associated with the promotion.
- We aim to make sure that our employees and agents do not misrepresent the firm or portray rival suppliers in a negative way.
- We train all relevant staff and contractors regarding this Code of Conduct as well as regular sales training regarding all products and services. We ensure that our sales agents do not provide misleading information or apply undue pressure in order to gain a customer. We have an ongoing quality assurance programme to proactively assess individual sales agents.

Practice for sign up at a customer's premises

We make sales calls to customers' premises only at the following times - between 9am and 9pm on weekdays and from 9am to 7pm on Saturdays. We do not call outside of these hours, or on Christmas Eve, any Public or Bank Holiday, or on Sundays, unless specifically requested by the customer.

As soon as our representative makes contact with the customer, he/she produces an identity card showing his/her full name and photograph and Electric Ireland's name, business address and contact number. At all times after that, the card will be shown as requested by the customer.

Our representative advises the customer of the purpose of the visit. If, at any time, the customer does not wish to proceed, we leave the premises immediately and upon request, advise the customer of how to be removed from the contact list.

We confirm that the person opening the account has authority to do so and clearly explain to the customer the products available, the energy offer, discounts and charges associated with chosen products and length of contract where applicable.

The agent will also provide the general terms and conditions at the point of sale as well as information about their contract, the duration of contract, expected commencement and expected end date of contract (if applicable), conditions for renewal and termination, and if termination without charge is permitted, billing, payment methods and any budgeting options available. The agent will advise the customer that their specific price plan and rate details will be sent to them by post or email. When signing up a customer at a customer's premises, our agents will leave a copy of the customers contract, cancellation form and doorstop checklist and actively confirm that the customer has read and understands them.

We will ascertain whether the customer is eligible to register as a Vulnerable Customer and if so, the steps they have to take to register.

If for any reason a residential customer decides to cancel their switch after the 30 day cooling off period, a termination fee of €50 per fuel will apply. This does not apply to customers who have completed their fixed term contract.

Practice for marketing by email

Where we engage in marketing via email to current customers, we provide:

- Our name and address.
- Our email address or other means of electronic contact.
- Our contact number.
- An easy method of unsubscribing/removal of your email address or mobile phone number from future messages.

Where the customer chooses to 'opt out' of future marketing, we do not contact the customer for the purpose of marketing again, unless requested to do so by the customer or unless the customer otherwise agrees.

Where we engage in marketing to potential customers for email, we obtain the 'opt in' of the customer prior to contacting them.

Practice for marketing by SMS

Where we engage in marketing via SMS to current customers, we provide:

- Our name.
- A free and easy method of unsubscribing/ removal of mobile phone numbers from future messages.

Where the customer chooses to 'opt out' of future marketing, we do not contact the customer for the purpose of marketing again, unless requested to do so by the customer or unless the customer otherwise agrees.

Where we engage in marketing to potential customers for SMS, we obtain the 'opt in' of the customer prior to contacting them.

Practice for marketing by telephone

We make calls to customers only at the following times: between 9am and 8pm on weekdays and from 9am to 7pm on Saturdays. We do not call outside of these hours, or on Christmas Eve, any Public or Bank Holiday, or on Sundays, unless specifically requested by the customer.

As soon as possible on making contact, our representative clearly identifies his/her name and makes the customer aware that the call is being made on behalf of Electric Ireland.

Our representative advises the customer of the purpose of the call. If, at any time during a telephone conversation, the customer does not wish to continue, then we cease the call immediately and advise the customer of how to be removed from the contact list.

We confirm that the person opening the account has authority to do so and clearly explain to the customer the products available, discounts and charges associated with chosen products and length of contract where applicable.

The agent will also provide information about billing, payment methods and any budgeting options available.

Our sales agents will advise the customer of the key terms and conditions and inform them that their full terms and conditions and specific price plan details will be sent to them by post or email.

If for any reason a residential customer decides to cancel their switch after the 14 day cooling off period, a termination fee of €50 per fuel will apply. This does not apply to customers who have completed their fixed term contract.
